

$100,000 grant for Midway College

Midway College announced that it has received a $100,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Education, with the help of Sen. Jim Bunning, to help Midway College expand its nursing program.

"The funds awarded from Senator Bunning will help Midway College double the size of our Associate Degree in Nursing program to graduate more nurses by 2012," said Dr. William B. Drake Jr., president of Midway College. The money will provide equipment and help renovate laboratories at the college.

The college also announced that it received a $500,000 gift from the James Graham Brown Foundation for the college's new $5 million Learning Resource Center, which is under construction. The building is scheduled to be completed in January 2011.
